Murders, suicide under investigation

BY ED LEPOMA

Waveland police confirmed at press time that two employees of the popular Kajun Kitchen restaurant near state Hwy. 603 and U.S. Hwy. 90 were found shot to death Wednesday morning just inside the restaurant's screened front

Details remained sketchy, but Waveland Police Department Investigator James Goss emerged from the restaurant about 1:30 p.m., some three hours after officers and ambulances were summoned to the Goss said he was withholding the identification of the victims until the relatives of one of the victims were notified. He ing south on Hwy. 603, and other would not confirm if the double murder was linked to a suicide reported after the shooting occurred.

Goss said another employee reported to work between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Wednesday, and found "both the white males deceased just inside the front door" and called 911.

He did not rule out robbery as a motive, but said the restaurant looked undisturbed, for the most part, and there was no evidence of forced entry.

The scene was quickly roped off by yellow police tape warning, "Do Not Cross." Relatives of the victims hugged each other, and shared muffled comments at the scene, but would not talk to reporters.

LANDFILL--PAGE 16

Split vote amends solid waste plan

BY ED LEPOMA

The Hattiesburg developers proposing a landfill in Hancock County won a hallow victory Monday after the Regional Solid Waste Authority voted 4-2 to amend the county's 20-year Solid Waste Plan and site a landfill in the buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Top Road and near the Han-Center.

The six-member Authority faced a jammed-packed supervisors' meeting room and went through a gut-wrenching, soulsearching session that lasted almost an hour and a half before coming to any decision.

It took a motion by former Waveland Mayor John Mason, the only non-elected official on the Authority, to provide any closure to a debate that has been going on in public for years, and became more intense since the Authority first held a last March 10.

Specifically,

Paige York-Losee, her father, Dr. Bennett York and others in her family want the Solid Waste Plan amended to allow them to seek permits for a combination rubbish site/landfill they have offered to build on about a third of a 723-acre tract of rolling woodlands off Flat cock-Pearl River County border.

The Yorks, who previously owned and operated landfills in Durant and Tunica, Miss., have proposed to spend up to $45 million to permit, build and operate the landfill, and have promised Hancock County residents free garbage disposal for up to 20 years, and estimated revenues of $2 million in tipping fees that will be paid by other firms dumping household garbage at the site.

The Authority called from Jackson, Bill Barnett, chief of public hearing on the landfill the state Department of Envir-

Thank You!

Thank you friends of Hannah Harris. Your outpouring of love & concern touched our lives in so many ways during the blood drive on May 22, 1999. A very special thanks to Susan Dorr and to Mike Thompson. Without them, the blood drive would not have been such a great success.

Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

The impact so far? getting tons of calls," said Parker. Since the weather didn't warrant much consumption of gas during the period at issue, he said, the financial impact on the city's revenues shouldn't be big.

Those who telephone the utility department are getting a corrected price quotation. Those who don't call, and therefore pay an inaccurate amount, will see a credit or past due amount on their billing next month, he said.

If the correct amount due is more than a customer owed last month, there won't be a penalty attached for underpayment, Parker said. "Definitely. If you underpay, there will be no penalty involved."

If you overpay because your erroneous bill is for more than you actually owe, the next bill should show a credit amount, Parker said.

But the best course of action for the consumer, said Parker, is to call the utility department phone number listed on the bill, and find out the correct amount due.

Parker explained the error by saying the monthly billing process involves a number of steps. "In one step, they hit one key instead of the other key and they didn't realize it until (the bills) went out."

While there are some quality control features in the city's. system, the particular error that snagged the system in this case is not under a control check, said

"Once you bill, you can't just say, 'Well let's change the date and do it over'," said Parker.

Smiles were on the faces of hundreds Tuesday evening at the ribbon cutting of the new Diamondhead Country Club.

The new facility replaces the old club which burned in November of 1995.

Diamondhead Country Club and Property Owners Association President Al Cronvich cut the ribbon for the much-awaited plush facility.

Cronvich said the new Diamondhead Country Club is the best in our area along the Coast and even better than those in New Orleans.

There were hundreds of Diamondhead residents awaiting to tour the new $3 million, 23,000 square-foot facility.

The new country club was completed by a third general contractor to work on the country club.

The new country club is reported to be more functional than the old one and has a stage and dance floor, two private dining rooms, a grill room, lounge and bar area, golf shop, men's and women's lockers, card rooms, Cronvich said there will be at least once a month a big celebration at the new club.

There will be a Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Business After Hours 5 to 7 p.m. today at the office of Kelly and Cabell, P.A., Attorneys at Law, 212 Main Street, Bay St. Louis.

I know that last year's was a great time, as there were a lot of goodies, and I was told there will be this year, too.

Admission is two business cards for chamber members and guests.

We hope to see you tonight at the Chamber's Business After Hours.

Big boats, little boats and all sizes inbetween were primed and ready to go Wednesday morning with the opening of the Mississippi shrimping season.

Many residents plan their vacations for the opening of the shrimping season.

I am sure there are many wives by now who are already tired of looking at shrimp, as they have been preparing this year's crop for the freezers.

Shrimp dishes are very popular in this area, and many families consume hundreds of pounds of them

I am hoping that all shrimpers, recreational and commercial, are careful as they move about the Sound in their chase of shrimp.

This is the time of year when severe thunderstorms can move into the Sound very fast. Many of the recreational shrimpers use small boats and need to pay attention to the weather.

I am hoping that it will be a very successful shrimping season for everyone.

Congratulations are in order for Mary Alice Benvenutti upon being selected as the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club's Teacher of the Year for 1999.

Mrs. Benvenutti has been teaching in our schools of Bay St. Louis, both public and private, for a total of 45

I really do not know how someone could last so long in a classroom.

Mrs. Benvenutti has touched the lives of hundreds and hundreds of the families of this community.

She is very deserving of the award from the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, and I wish to congratulate her again.

Litter, lack of pride reason for family moving back to Texas

Dear Editor:

I have to agree with the letter written by Anthony Corelli of New Orleans. We thought that this area would be a great place to raise a family. We noted that this area was behind the times, but with the new transplants we figured positive change was on the

The litter and the lack of anymore. It is embarrassing when friends and relatives visit. They always comment on the trash.

My amazement was to see in the shopping centers that people actually fill the shopping carts with trash from their cars. My husband and I are always picking up trash around the neighborhood.

What I don't understand is the high taxes, no car insurance required, and the exorbitant license tags. Believe it or not, it is cheaper to live in Texas. The housing costs are ridiculous for what you get.

I have also found that no one understands what zoning means. It kills me when a new business with great signage is pride now has us moving back told you must remove the sign, to Texas, as we can't take it but yet you have an auto junkyard repair shack just staring you in the face. Somehow the priorities are confused.

Needless to say it is time to move on, and the state wonders why they rank dead last in every possible area in the U.S. Kimberly Major Waveland

Casting an informed vote

As Mississippi's political season heats up this summer, how do responsible citizens intent on casting an informed vote make their decisions? After all, 17 candidates are vying for the governor's office alone, just one among hundreds of races throughout the state charging toward p rimary voting that will help determine which candidates will appear on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

Democratic and Republican party primaries are set for Aug. 3, with runoffs scheduled for Aug. 24. Eight statewide offices are up for electoral grab, along with a host of district and local offices that includes every seat in the Mississippi legislature -- 52 senators and 122 representa-

So how do we get information? Where do we learn about candidates and issues? What do we believe? What do we take with a grain of salt?

For Joe Atkins, University of Mississippi associate professor of journalism and veteran political reporter, the key for voters is to take seriously the civic responsibility of choosing public officials.

"In general, citizens have become too passive when it comes to elections," Atkins said. "Voters must be involved and aware of the issues and approach the process with an open mind."

Prison construction and truth-in-sentencing keep criminals off the streets

In 1995, I proposed a 100 per- later. cent truth-in-sentencing bill. Negotiations with the Legislature resulted in a law requiring criminals to serve at least 85 percent of their prison sentences before being eligible for struction have come under attack — the principle objection being that there are different types of felons, some more deserving of mercy than others.

Fellow Mississippians, allow me to call to your attention a sad fact: we are at war. On the one hand are all the hardworking, law-abiding people. On the other hand are those who would deprive you of your property, your physical and mental wellbeing, your very life.

The apologists for criminals are legion and vocal: those wellmeaning, but misled, bleeding hearts; those who profit from manipulating the criminal justice system to gain freedom for convicted felons; the social apologists, who believe that one cannot be held accountable for one's actions unless one had a perfect childhood.

All of these groups can marshal arguments against the 85 percent rule. I can say only this: if you can't do the time, don't to the crime. Before the truth-insentencing law was passed, many inmates served only 25 percent of their sentences before being eligible for parole.

The Legislature and I were concerned about what message was being sent to citizens and those who break the law. In times of war, perfect solutions may not be available. Let us win the war and seek perfectibility

I appreciate the Legislature's cooperation to secure the largest increase in prison cells in Mississippi history. The prison construction project running from 1994 to 2000 will result in more than 8,800 addi-The 85 percent rule and the tional beds. It is the state's responsibility to keep dangerous felons off the

> A national study of states' prison statistics indicated that, in 1991, 94 percent of state prisoners had previously committed a violent crime, served time in prison or been on probation. 45 percent of these prisoners committed their crimes while on probation or parole.

An estimated 218,000 violent crimes, including 13,200 murders and 11,600 rapes, were committed. (Information form the Bureau of Justice Statistics as cited by Princeton University's John J. Diluilio Jr.).

I would direct the attention of these critics who complain about increases in our corrections budget to the fact that only 6.5 percent of the general fund for FY 2000 goes to corrections. I want Mississippians to have safe streets, safe neighborhoods, safe schools. As long as criminals believe they have a free ride in our state, they will take full advantage of their license to commit larceny, rape, murder, robbery and white collar crime. One criminal roaming our streets is one too many. By taking dangerous criminals off the streets, we can begin to win the war against crime.

USM to hold overnight preview session for fall

Students who have been admitted to the University of Southern Mississippi and their parents are encouraged to attend an overnight fall preview session June 10-11.

Freshmen Preview, a twoday orientation for new incoming freshmen is designed to help students make a smooth transition from high school into the USM community.

Students will meet their academic advisers, register for fall courses, review transcripts and check financial aid statues -- as well as be introduced to such campus resources as libraries, computer labs, and recreational and health-care facilities.

Students can learn about USM history and make new friends while planning their fall schedules.

In separate sessions, parents may speak with faculty members and representatives of USM departments such as financial aid, public safety, residence life, Greek life and food services.

At a Thursday night rally, USM representatives from Career Planning and Placement, Campus Safety and others will talk to freshmen about how to take advantage of USM services and activities available to students.

A $60 fee for students covers orientation materials, lunch, dinner, breakfast and overnight accommodations in a USM residence hall.

The Parent Preview Fee, $20 for one parent or $30 for both parents, covers materials, lunch, dinner and breakfast. Parents must arrange for their own overnight accommodations.

Reservations will be confirmed on a first-come, firstserved basis, and limited space is available.

USM also will hold one-day summer preview sessions open to both incoming freshmen and transfer students. Open sessions are offered June 24, July 1, July 10, July 15 and July 22. Previews is required for all incoming freshmen.

For information about Preview session, call (601) 266-5000.

Jones unifies world title in Biloxi

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

On Saturday, June 5, a very confident Roy Jones, Jr. brought unification to the light heavyweight boxing ranks. Jones, the WBC and WBA light heavyweight champion of the world, defeated the IBF light heavyweight world champion Reggie Johnson in a 12 round unanimous decision at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum. The fight was sponsored by Grand Casino, Murad Muhammed/ M&M Sports, Square Ring, Inc., and in association with Jordan Brand.

This was the first light heavyweight unification title bout held in 14 years. Michael Spinks last defended the undisputed light heavyweight championship of the world on June 6, 1985.

Some special celebrities on the Coast for the special event were former New Orleans linebacker Pat Swilling, current New Orleans head coach Mike Ditka, current heavyweight champion of the world Evander Holyfield, former undisputed heavyweight champion of the world George Foreman, and arguably the greatest basketball player ever former Chicago Bulls All-Star Michael Jordan.

The fight was televised live by HBO Sports.

Jones now holds the IBF, WBC, and WBA light heavyweight world titles and is the only undisputed champion in the world.

With the win, Jones upped his record to 40-1, 33 KOs and put an exclamation point on his status as the best "Pound for Pound" fighter in the world. Johnson dropped to 39-6-1, 24 KOs with the loss.

Jones is 14-1 in world title defenses. His only loss was a disqualification in his first light heavyweight title defense against Montell Grifffin on March 21, 1997, in Atlantic City. He regained the WBC title on August 7, 1997, in a rematch with Griffin.

Jones has won world titles at the middleweight, super middleweight, and light heavyweight divisions.

Jones stated, "I'm not surprised the fight went the distance because Reggie Johnson is a two-time world champion."

"I had a great time tonight. His punches did not hurt me. My challenge tonight was to take control of the fight. I feel that I did that. It took a lot of patience on my part because there were a lot of opportunities where I could have taken advantage of him. However, that would have been stupid to take that risk when I was so far ahead in the match. Establishing control was my challenge and I accomplished that."

Jones used his lightening quick hands and one-punch power to get at Johnson. In the first round, Jones knocked down Johnson with a devastating left hook.

Again in the third round, Jones used his hand speed to land a left/right combination that sent Johnson back to the

After the third round, Johnson began to counter Jones's speed; however, the outcome had been determined way Jones threw 520 punches and mark for a 60% figure. Johnson connected on just 15% of his power punches going 33 for 214. Speculation has risen about

Jones possibly moving up to the heavyweight division to challenge for another title. Jones responded, "If the right opportunity presents itself then I will think about it. But, Roy Jones will do what is best for Roy Jones and his crew.'

In another world title fight on the undercard, Vassiliy Jirov scored a seventh round TKO over reigning IBF cruiser-weight world champion Arthur Williams.

Women fight for IBA world championship Friday at Casino Magic Casino Magic Bay St. Louis, in conjunction with Fight Coordinator Les Bonano, present a program of world-class professional boxing at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday, June 11.

Casino Magic is home to boxing champions such as Larry Holmes, Roy Jones Jr., Hector "Macho" Camacho, Oscar De La Hoya and Roberto Duran.

The Friday night fight card features four male bouts and three female bouts. Featured in the main event is Jeanne "Boom Boom" Martinez (7-2-1 draw) out of Slidell, takes on Snowdene Blakney (7-1) of Austin, Texas, in a 10-round bout for the now vacant IBA Light World Championship women's title.

The main event is an 8round Cruiserweight bout featuring Dominick "Hurricane" Carter (28-8, 14 KOs) out of Metairie, versus Tracy Barrios (12-8) out of Venice, La.

when he was paired with Rocky, Gannon, in their rematch for the IBA title in 1997. Bad blood has existed between Carter and Barrios for years. This will be the grudge match to see.

A special attraction 8-round Heavyweight bout on the card features Clifford "Black Rhino" Etienne (7-0-0, 5 KOs) out of Baton Rouge against Eric Jackson (2-2, 1 draw) of St. Louis, Mo.

Etienne won his first two professional fights via KO in a total of 66 seconds and is currently training under the Evander Holyfield's trainer, Don Turner.

The co-feature of the night is an 8-round Super Middleweight Will "Kid Fire" McIntyre (20-2-0, 9 KOs) out of Covington, La. who will face a yet-to-be-named opponent.

Suzy Taylor (4-1, 1 KO) of Decatur, Ga., who fought at Casino Magic in February winning the IBA Heavyweight in a 6-round women's Middleweight hour against Kendra Linehart (3-4) of Nashville, Tenn.

In addition, Joey "The Butcher Boy" Ancona (4-0, 3 KOs) of Metairie makes his first appearance at Magic in a four-round Cruiserweight bout against Leon Morris (4-4) of Folsom, La.

And last, but not least, is the 100-pound Atlanta Falcons cheerleader Nina Ahlin (3-0) of Atlanta, Ga., who will make her first appearance at Casino Magic in a four-round Junior Featherweight match against Sarah "Jones" Rama from the Philippines.

Tickets may be purchased at the Casino Magic Box Office and through all TicketMaster outlets. Tickets are $50, $30, $20 and $10. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. with the first bout beginning at 7 p.m. Event and fighters are subject to change without notice.

Club generates $4,000 for football program

The generous donations of 27 Pearl River Community College football partisans has resulted in $4,000 earmarked for the Wildcat team, says PRCC Athletic Director Keith Daniels.

A portion of the funds will be used to purchase a new coaches' sideline communications system for Dobie Holden Stadium -- the home of the Wildcats -- while much needed practice equipment will also be purchased, said Daniels, who is also PRCC;'s head football

"Every athletic program on our campus has budgetary restraints and oftentimes there are things you need, but the money just isn't there to accommodate that need," said Daniels. "Through the development foundation and the Wildcat Club we were able to raise the funds we needed and even more."

Daniels lauded the likes of Wildcat Club President Greg Mitchell of Picayune and Columbia attorney Maurice Dantin for their efforts.

"They truly care about Wildcat football," said Daniels, noting that many of the parents of his players made generous donations.

Donna Wilson is executive director of the PRCC Development Foundation.

Baseball tryouts set

Baseball tryouts for the 1999 State Games of Mississippi have been set for June 19 at 10 a.m. at eight locations around the state.

High school juniors and seniors graduating in 2000 and 2001 will have an opportunity to show off their baseball skills in front of a selection committee comprised of high school baseball coaches from around the state.

At each tryout location, coaches will select 20 players who will represent their district in a College World Series format tournament at the eighth annual State Games June 24-27. Mississippi High School Activities Association rules will apply for the competition. There is no registration or cost to try out, but parents must sign a waiver for a player to try out. Locally, tryouts will be at Mississippi Gulf Coast Com-munity College in Perkinston June 19 at 10 a.m.

The baseball tournament is one of 26 sporting events offered in the games. Nearly 4,700 Mississippi athletes are expected to converge on Meridian for the eighth annual sportfest scheduled for June 17-27.

The State Games is the state's largest amateur multisports festival for all ages and skill levels and provides a fun and exciting challenge for aspiring athletes who can experience the thrills of formal Olympic-style competition.

For information, locate State Games of Mississippi at the Web site address, www.stategamesofms.org, or call 601-482-0205 or 800-482-0205.

Eric Clark releases new list of 'Top 10 Investment Scams'

Secretary of State Eric Clark released a list of the Top Ten Investment Scams and cautioned Mississippians to investigate before they invest.

"Mississippians need to know there are crooks who are out to steal their money," Clark said. "It's white-collar crime, plain and simple, and everyone needs to get all the facts so they won't become vic-

The list is prepared by the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA). the scams include pricey day-trading seminars, supposedly high-yielding promissory notes, investments in "viatical settlements" (interests in the life insurance policies of supposedly terminally ill people), Internet fraud, affinity group fraud, investment seminars, Ponzi and pyramid schemes, illegal franchise offerings and entertainment scams.

"Today we have an ideal climate for fraud," said Peter C. Hildreth, New Hampshire's director of Securities Regulation and president of NASAA.

"Millions of new investors, many of whom expect unrealistically high returns, are looking for places to put their money. At the same time we're living through an Internetdriven technology revolution that is a boon to investors and con artists alike.

8. Entertainment fraud. Con artists zero in on investors hoping to hit it big by buying a piece of the next "Titanic." Besides movies, investment vehicles include cable television shows, video games and other entertainment products.

9.Ponzi/pyramid

Always in style, these swindles promise high rates of return to investors, but the only people who really make a killing are the promoters who set them in motion, at the expense and out of funds from later investors, who end up losing their money when the house of cards inevitably collapses

10. Illegal franchise offerings. States have taken actions relating to inadequate disclosure and fraud involving franchise investments, often marketed at business opportunity and franchise trade shows where promoters target people attracted by the prospect of owning their own business.

Before asking an investment or doing business with a stock broker or investment or franchise promoter, call the Secretary of State's Office to find out if they are properly registered or have a disciplinary history.

When checking out a stock broker, ask for their CRD record, which gives their employment and disciplinary history. The Secretary of State's phone number is 601-359-1633. NASAA can be reached at 202-737-0900.

Artist paints flowery image for Beau Rivage

Frances Hardy is the only Mississippi painter whose works were commissioned by and on display at the Beau Rivage in Biloxi, the Coast's newest and largest resort.

The Beau Rivage purchased five paintings from Hardy's Poppy Collection, a series of florals done with acrylic paint. The resort also bought the rights and is using the images on its restaurant menus, brochures and hotel room key cards, with plans later this spring to sell t-shirts, notecards and other souvenir items featuring her work.

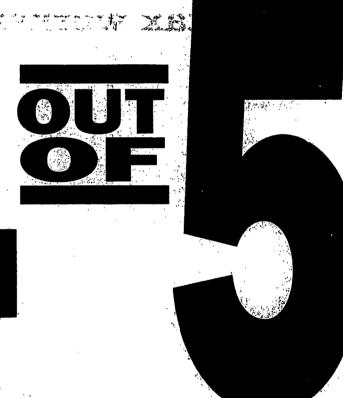

"I am excited and overwhelmed by the exposure my artwork is receiving," said Hardy, a Jackson native who now lives in Tupelo. "I am also flattered because the Beau Rivage is a Mirage property which is headed by Steve Wynn, a well-known art collector.'

Hardy noted that Wynn's collection of paintings by Picasso, Rembrandt, Van Gogh, Monet and Jackson Pollock are housed at Bellagio Resort in Las Vegas.

In their quest for artwork to adorn the new resort, Beau Rivage executives sought a Mississippi artist who could capture the resort's essence. President Doug Pool saw one painting of Hardy's in Veranda magazine and contacted New York's Agora Gallery, who represents

"For a long time, I was unaware who the client interested in my work was, at least until the copyright negotiations were settled," admitted Hardy. "The significance of the Beau Rivage being the client is greater than I imagined and will certainly have a positive impact on my

Mississippi Power prepares for Year 2000 computer 'bug'

By now, many people are aware of what is often called the Y2K problem — the possibility that computers will think Jan. 2000 is Jan. 1, 1900.

Experts and amateurs have predicted everything from ATMs denying people their own money to airplanes falling out of the sky. Something that would affect nearly everyone is if the electricity delivery system

"Our priority for Dec. 31 and an. 1 is to keep the lights on. just as it is tonight and tomorrow," says Mississippi Power spokesman Kurt Brautigum. 'We don't think it's at all likely that the electric systems of a region or area will fail as we roll into the year 2000."

For several years, Missis-sippi Power Company and Southern Company, its parent corporation, have been working to make sure everything works as it should on Jan. 1, 2000.

'We've made a considerable effort to find any effects possibly related to the Y2K problem and correct them," Brautigam says. "That process should be complete by June. Everything so far has gone very well. Among other things, we've moved the dates ahead on some generating plant computers to see if there would be problems and there haven't been.

The electric utility industry as a whole has been very determined to find solutions to this problem," Brautigam says. "It's been a cooperative effort."

Just last month utility companies around the world, including Mississippi Power, successfully passed a date that had some people worried. April 9 was the 99th day of the year, meaning it could be written 9999, which to some computers signals the end of a program. Some programs might have failed immediately after that number was used.

The date passed with no apparent problems, however, and many utilities actually used the opportunity to conduct additional tests of alternative communications methods.

On Sept. 9 and 10 the same computer problem exists — too many 9s for the ninth day of the ninth month of the 99th year. Nationwide tests are scheduled for that day, as well.

In addition to the detailed process of replacing hardware and software and systems testing, a final component of Mississippi Power's Y2K response will be having contingency plans for New Year's Eve.

We'll be prepared to respond to anything that might happen," Brautigam says. "We will treat the entire event leading up to that evening like we would a major storm. Additional personnel will be on duty at strategic locations throughout our system and we'll have backup computer and communication plans ready.

"However, we're confident that our planning and preparations will ensure the reliability of our system," says Brautigam.
"We are focused on providing our customers with safe, reliable service, just as we do every day. We believe significant service interruptions are unlikely, but if they do occur, we think they will be isolated and of short duration.

"That's the message we're trying to get out now," Brautigam added. "We think it's important to try to ease the fears people have from not knowing what to expect when New Year's Day gets here. If our customers have questions, they can call our toll-free customer information line at 1-877-888-2006."

IRS offers free small business tax workshop

A free tax workshop for selfemployed people and small business owners will be held 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Friday, June 11 at the Orange Grove Community Center on Hwy. 49.

The workshop is offered by the IRS in conjunction with the Department of Leisure Services as a Gulfport Community Service to alert new and established business owners of their federal tax responsibilities.

Instructors will cover topics such as recordkeeping and accounting practices, federal deposit procedures, employee withholdings, business deductions and filing requirements. Practical exercises will teach small business owners how to determine taxable income and how to complete the required tax forms. Participants will also learn about the advantages and disadvantages of sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations.

The special workshop will also include highlights of the tax law changes, some information on EFTPS (Electronic Federal Tax Payment System), Form 8300 (Cash Transactions Over $10,000), electronic filing of business returns, and other alterative ways of filing. A question-and-answer segment will follow.

Those interested in attending are encouraged to pre-register by calling (504) 558-3011.

Small Disadvantaged Business program briefing session set

The Small Business Administration's Office of Small Disadvantaged Business Certification and Eligibility will be conducting a briefing to businesses and federal procurement officials regarding the administration's new procurement reforms and requirements as they relate to Small Disadvantaged Businesses (SDBs).

The briefing, which will be on June 15, at Tougaloo College Health and Wellness Center, is designed to inform and educate SDBs to ensure their equitable consideration in the federal procurement process.

A full day is planned (9 a.m.-5 p.m.) with registration beginning at 8 a.m. There is no charge for attending; however seating is limited.

Under the new federal procurement regulation, SDBs are now eligible for a price adjustment of up to 10 percent on competitively awarded federal contracts and effective Jan. 1, 1999, prime contractors who subcontract with SDBs are eligible for contract evaluation adjustments.

These adjustments apply to industries in which SDBs are deemed underutilized according to U.S. Department of Commerce marketplace benchmark studies.

Prime contractors can also receive monetary incentives based on achievement of certain SDB subcontracting tar-

If your business strategy involves providing the federal government with needed p products and services, then you should consider attending this briefing. Your attendance will allow you to gain a better understanding of the federal procurement environment and the benefits SDB certification can bring.

Final Bay drainage tab a whopping $1.9 million

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis City officials closed the books Tuesday on the first of three major drainage projects, with a total tab of $1,901,587.

Originally under a $1,071,000 contract, the project slammed into several major unanticipated stumbling blocks along the way. In action Tuesday, City Council approved over $588,000 in final adjustments to material quantities used by the contractor, Colom Construction Co.

Project engineer James Chiniche agreed Wednesday the final tab amounts to a huge difference from the original bid accepted for the work. But Chiniche said there were unanticipated additions and unsuitable soil conditions along the say that hiked the project price up

One problem involved the proximity of some Spanish Acres ditches to the CSX rail lines.

Rather than increase the size of those ditches, workers had to install costly pipework to ensure the stability of the ditches, said

Another problem happened not long after the project began in earnest, when a massive series of rainstorms inundated the city, causing some dirt canals to cave in while under construction.

The canals had to be rebuilt. "Some of the ditches weren't ready for that kind of rainfall," said Chiniche.

Meanwhile, some other old ditches that had been completely obscured by weeds were uncovered during the project, and had to have concrete conduits laid in them. When workers some unsuitable subsurface soils along the way, another cost hike was incurred to add stabilizing materials. 'While council approved a series of $588,000 accounts for the actual materials used in addition to the estimates found in the change orders, Chiniche said.

Meanwhile, work is in progress on a second leg of the drainage program. Colom is under a $3.1 million contract for the old town section of the city, where other "hidden" problems lurk subsurface. Officials expect that contract price to increase too, as the problems are encountered.

The final segment of work is out for bids, and officials will open the offers next month.

All of the work was to have been financed through a $5.5 million bond issue, but the first two segments of the program have consumed most, if not all, of that should cover all the major problem spots the city located during an extensive testing program begun several years ago.

Most of the repair work will involve a liner material, which is eased into broken sewer conduits. The line is blasted with hot water to make it convert into a hard resin material. That process, until recently under a patent, has become less expensive now that the patent has expired, officials with Compton Engineering told council members.

Original estimates had put the repair work at around $1 million. Favre said the initial repair work would be on Ballentine and Sycamore streets, two streets that have with substantial problems, which have plagued the city in recent years.

In other matters, council members split 3-2 in a vote revising the city's sign ordinance provisions on banners.

One change will lower the fee now charged for permits to display banners, from $25 to $15.

Another change will allow D'head burglar nabbed in woods merchants in the downtown area to display banners - under the old rules they couldn't do so because most downtown buildings are within 20 feet of a roadway.

> Ward 4 council member Tad Black proposed both changes. He also was successful in blocking a suggestion by the administration that banners should be permitted for up to 12 weeks a year for any business or organization. Council's vote keeps the limit at eight weeks.

The changes also define, for the first time, what constitutes a banner And the new definition decreases the size of allowable banners from 75 square feet to 25 square feet.

City officials began a crackdown on banner displays several months ago, leading to an outcry from area merchants and banner-makers over the regulations and the way the rules were being enforced.

Favre and Building Official Bill Carrigee had proposed several changes to the ordinance, which were subjected to a public hearing last month.

Amid the confusion and controversy that erupted with enforcement of the banner regulations, Carrigee said he stopped enforcing the ordinance to allow council to take action on proposed revisions.

Black - who had initially raised the issue of how banners regulations were being enforced in the city - wasn't happy with the idea of increasing the eight-week rule to 12 weeks.

But council member James Rutherford, who serves at-large, said he thought the limit should be more than 12 weeks. He and Ward 3 council member Connie Lampley voted against Black's set of changes.

Meanwhile, another area of controversy in the city's sign ordinance was on the agenda Tuesday night, as owners of a furniture store in Bay Mall sought a temporary variance that would allow them to keep their new sign in place until January.

Saying they'd spent $5,000 on the sign before they realized the city even regulated signs, the store owners and managers begged for a chance to recover financially before investing another $5,000 to $8,000 in an awning that will replace the Council members said they were sympathetic with the business predicament, but refused to grant such a long variance. Instead, they said they would allow the sign to stay in place until Sept. 1, and asked for an update on the matter in August.

On another matter, council heard presentations from officials of two privately owned companies, which are in the business of managing probation and home arrest cases. Both companies want to have the city court's caseload.

David Rothbard of Court Programs Inc., said his Gulfportbased firm has been in business in Mississippi for six years, and elsewhere for a total of 30 years.

At no cost to the government, the firm oversees probation cases and ensures that defendants meet all the specific criteria of probation, said Rothbard. With over 20,000 defendants in their Mississippi caseload, Rothbard said each jurisdiction outlines specifically how the program will operate.

The company charges defendants $50 per month as an administrative fee for probation supervision, and $6 per day for in-house arrest if the defendant is awaiting trial, council

Components of the supervision include insuring that those who can work do so, that fines are paid in full and on time, and that other actions ordered by the court are adhered to. Those actions could include, for instance, obtaining a high school equivalency certificate, or participating in counseling for drug abuse.

In cases where felony arrest prisons are released to the company's supervision, Rothbard said tamper proof ankle monitors are used to keep tabs on defendants constantly. Besides the monitors. Rothbard sends his agents on surprise visits to defendants' residences to ensure that the conditions of release are being met. He told council that the size of his company's caseload enables him to waive fees for some of the clientele who are incapable of paying monitoring fees. A second such company, headed by Keith Switzer, already has signed up to work in Waveland. Switzer said the Hancock County Board of Supervisors agreed this week to use his firm for the county's caseload as well.

Switzer said his firm offers the same basic services as those outlined by Rothbard. But its only client so far has been the city of Waveland.

In other matters Tuesday, council: -- Asked for a recommendation to fill the Planning and Zoning Commission seat recently vacated by its chairman, David Bassett.

--Set a preliminary budget workshop for July 7, and asked that Fire Chief Bobby Gavagnie attend to outline his department's projected expenses.

--Asked for a review by City Attorney John Scafide ordinances which are used to enforce rules against junk or abandoned vehicles. Black also said he wants an outline of regulations pertaining latticework for fences.

When Ward 2 council member James Thriffiley complained that some residents are parking RVs, boats and 18-wheel truck trailers on residential property, Rutherford said there's nothing to prohibit that in a "free" community like Bay St. Louis.

"We're not Diamondhead," said Rutherford. "If you want to run a Diamondhead, you ought to move to Diamondhead."

onmental Quality's groundwater division to answer several technical and environmental questions posed at the March public hearing.

Barnett proved to be a knowledgeable and articulate spokesman for DEQ and fielded questions for more than an

Supervisor Lisa Cowand wanted to know if the county could face a fine of up to $25,000 a day in the event it did not amend the 20-year Solid Waste

Although Barnett said each county is required to update its plan every five years, and a fine could be levied, "DEQ will decide when (the plan) needs to be updated.

We have not put you on any deadline," said Barnett.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre asked Barnett if it were true that because Hancock County ships its hazardous waste to Louisiana, it could not reject out-of-state garbage at the landfill.

Barnett said there was no truth to that statement, but if a landfill were privately owned and operated, it falls under federal Interstate Commerce law, and the owner could not be prohibited from accepting and soliciting garbage from out of state.

Barnett said the Authority, which contracts with the landfill operator, could set tonnage limits and a service radius.

Bay Councilwoman Carleen Moran asked Barnett how many Subtitle-D landfills were operating in Mississippi, and if DEQ had problems with any.

Barnett estimated about 18 to 19 are operating in the state, and at the older ones there has been some odor problems, caused mainly by methane gas escaping from the mounds of garbage. At those, he said, DEQ has ordered monitors installed, but he said monitors are not required when a landfill is initially opened, because it takes some time for the methane to build up.

Authority Chairman Rocky Pullman asked Barnett if there had been any liner failures at any landfill, and he said there was none.

Moran wanted to know if DEQ had any problems with the York site, but Barnett told her there was too little data to determine if it is suitable for a landfill. Moran complained that the Authority was "being asked very technical questions that we can't answer.'

·· Barnett told her, You shouldn't be put in the position of having to evaluate technical questions." He explained the DEQ permitting process is a very thorough one, involving a team of engineers and geologists, and the permitting process could take up to a year or

Moran wanted to know if landfills have withstood hurricanes, and Barnett told her there "was no significant" problems at the nearby Pecan Grove landfill in Harrison County during last year's Hurricane

Pullman noted that Stennis operates a small landfill, and Barnett told him there was no problems created by vibrations from rocket testing and no leachate problems at the site. Asked about the Yorks' past violations at the Durant and Tunica landfills, Barnett said both those landfills were old, and came with inherent problems, but, "It became a much better operation over time as they began to get more experience." He said he had gained respect for the Yorks over the years.

Waveland Mayor Tommy Longo wanted to know how many of the landfills operating in Mississippi were owned by cities or counties and how many were privately owned and operated.

Barnett said he didn't have those figures available, but he believed the majority of the state's landfills are privately owned and operated.

Favre made a motion for the Authority to go into executive session to "discuss contract negotiations," and Moran seconded, but Authority attorney Lucien Gex ruled "there was no contract being negotiated," and they couldn't go into executive session. He said the only issue being discussed at the public hearing was the amendment to the Solid Waste Plan.

After that setback, Moran mentioned that Waste Management Inc., which has the present garbage contract had "informally" given the Authority a price to begin hauling Hancock County's household garbage to the Central Landfill outside Picayune and had offered a long-term agreement. Waste Management's District Management Larry Hubbard was in the audience, and confirmed that there had been some informal talks, and that a long-term agreement was offered, but Mason reminded incomes. After exploring the options before the Authority, Mason seemed to grow weary of the extended proceedings. "We've hashed this thing over 1,000 times," said Mason. He made the motion to amend the Solid Waste Plan.

"Let it rip," said Moran, and she made the second.

Mason, Moran, Favre and Longo voted to amend the plan, and Pullman and Cowand voted against. Pullman said he had listened to his constituents and is now convinced that the landfill question should be placed on a future ballot to allow people to vote on it.

The vote merely means that the amended plan can now be reviewed by DEQ, but technically, it places the York proposal in the county's future

To landfill opponents seeking a county-owned and operated landfill, Moran said it was estimated that it would cost about $7.5 million just to prep a landfill site, and bonds would have to be floated for the landfill. Gex has also questioned a recent reversal of opinion by the state Attorney General's office that said supervisors can put the landfill matter on a public referendum.

"If that's the case, then what's the point of having a Solid Waste Authority," he

Supervisors wanted the landfill question put on the ballot as early as the August 3 primaries, but Hancock County Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler told the Echo at press time late Wednesday the Attorney General's office said it would have to go on the November ballot. "It has to be run and supervised by the Election Commission, and we can't do that in primary elections," said Metzler. Primaries are for political parties only, she said.

motorists coming out of the busy west entrance into the Wal-Mart Shopping Center also stopped their vehicles and got out to inquire about what was taking place. Other employees of the Waveland Holiday Inn, which abuts the south side of the restaurant, also gathered at the scene.

Waveland Police Chief James Varnell was reported out of town at a meeting, but Asst. Chief Sandra Henley was on the scene, as well as Bay St. Louis Chief Frank Varnell and Asst. Chief Dave Stepro, Waveland Mayor Tommy Longo and county coroner Norma Stiglet. A team from American Rescue Service arrived at the restaurant around noon, went in briefly, but later emerged. About 1:45 p.m., two Edmund Fahey hearses arrived at the scene, and the bodies of the two victims were bagged, and carried out on separate stretcher through the south exit of the restaurant and loaded into the vehicles.

Goss said an autopsy would be performed on both the victims, and the investigation was

Sewer tie-ins to be enforced

BY ED LEPOMA The deadline is fast approaching for citizens to hook up to sewerage connections in the Shoreline Park area, and to connections on U.S. Hwy. 90 and Blue Meadow Road.

Hancock County Water and Sewer District Administrator Pam Gauthreaux has advertised the deadlines in the Echo, but she said she wanted to remind property owners of the consequences for not hooking up to the sewerage system. "The deadline for connecting front of your property is July 1, 1999," said Gauthreaux. However, she added, "Anyone not connected and fully operational by August 1, 1999 will be charged the full connection to the sewer system located in and permit fee of $2,535, plus a refundable deposit of $105."

Gauthreaux said the District will begin levying monthly sewerage charges Aug. 1, 1999, and an interest rate of 1.5 percent per month will be charged
